Questions 43-47 refer to the following article.

The World's Greatest Wonders

Three men traveling on a train began a conversation about the world's greatest wonders.

"In my opinion," the first man said, "the Egyptian pyramids are the world's greatest wonder.

Although they were built thousands of years ago, they are still standing. And remember: the people who built them had only simple tools. They did not have the kind of machinery that builders and engineers have today."

"I agree that the pyramids in Egypt are wonderful," the second man said, "but I do not think they are the greatest wonder. I believe computers are more wonderful than the pyramids. They have taken people to moon and brought them back safely. In seconds, they carry out mathematical calculations that would take a person a hundred years to do."

He turned to the third man and asked, "What do you think is the greatest wonder in the world?"

The third man thought for a long time, and then he said, "Well, I agree that the pyramids are wonderful, and I agree that computers are wonderful, too. However, in my opinion, the most wonderful thing in the world is this thermos."

And he took a thermos out of his bag and held it up.

The other two men were very surprised. "A thermos?" they exclaimed.

"But that's a simple thing."

"Oh, no, it's not," the third man said. "In the winter you put in a hot drink and it stays hot. In the summer you put in a cold drink and it stays cold. How does the thermos know whether it's winter or summer?"

43. The travelers passed the time on the train by talking about
- (A) the journey.
 - (B) the train.
 - (C) themselves.
 - (D) wonderful things.
44. The three men could not agree on what the world's greatest wonder was because
- (A) they could not think of anything very wonderful.
 - (B) they all had different ideas.
 - (C) they could not prove that their opinions were right.
 - (D) the journey ended too soon.
45. The first man thought the pyramids were the most wonderful things in the world because
- (A) they were very beautiful.
 - (B) they were Egyptian.
 - (C) they had been built with very simple tools.
 - (D) they could do mathematical calculations.
46. The third man thought a thermos was the most wonderful thing in the world because
- (A) it lasted longer than the pyramids.
 - (B) it cost less than a computer.
 - (C) he thought it knew whether it was winter or summer.
 - (D) the other two men were surprised when he told them about it.
47. The third man was not very clever because
- (A) he could not think of anything to say.
 - (B) he did not understand how a thermos works.
 - (C) he did not think the pyramids were wonderful.
 - (D) he did not know anything about computers.

Questions 48-50 refer to the following letter.

The University of Chicago

Chicago, Illinois

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to support the application of Eric Shanahan for a Master's Degree at the University of Chicago this coming fall. I have known Mr. Shanahan for one year now. During this time, he has worked in our office as a writer and editor. I have come to respect the work he does here; he is an efficient journalist and an excellent critic of all the projects I have put in his hands. They include articles on everything from Chinese culture to Western literature, the latest in pop culture to classical music.

In my opinion, Mr. Shanahan is an academically oriented individual. During his time here, he has pushed himself to improve his Chinese, to the point where he is now fluent in both spoken and written Chinese. I have also noticed him studying German, French and Russian. As he is interested in pursuing International Relations, I am sure his interest in languages will make him a desirable applicant.

Although Mr. Shanahan does not work in my department, he has always cooperated with us when we need help, providing editing and other such assistance. It is also worth mentioning that Mr. Shanahan works in an international office. He works with people from all different cultures, and he does it in their language. He likes to talk to other people and to make new contacts.

During my eight years of publishing in Taiwan, this is the kind of colleague I really enjoy—somebody with a Bachelor of Arts degree, who has explored the world from a thoughtful perspective, then wants to return to academic life with specific goals in mind.

Your program will be richer for his contributions.

If you have any other questions, please do not hesitate to get in touch with me.

Sincerely,

William Lawrence

Owner of the Easterly Publishing Company
